MONDAY, May 6, 1771.

To the FREE ELECTORS of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY. (c)

Friends and Brethren in one common Cause,

IN an ADDRESS to you last Monday, I did not allow myself to be so far heated by the fire of party, in what respected Governor Hutchinson, as to offer you the product of my suspicions however strong & well-founded. I proceeded under a cool guard of hypothetic restriction. Duty to myself will be sufficient, exclusive of the same tye and warmest affection to you, my Brethren, and to the whole Family of Freedom in America, to lead me often to take some public notice of his Excellency's public sentiments and conduct. But, for the future, whenever I shall touch upon his idea of British Parliamentary Supremacy over these Colonies, I shall feel myself free from my past restriction; not indeed to follow rash suspicions, but to build firmly upon his own declaration. His friends,—— but why do I prostitute that term which in their zeal they have forfeited?—his sycophants have said that his private sentiments, on the above interesting point, were different from what might be conjectured from his official conduct. However, as a wag once noticed, whenever they trumpeted in that tune, they entirely omitted all mention of his inflexible integrity. I am determined to keep that quality always in sight; and as he has publickly called the British Parliament our supreme legislature, I am induced to judge he has been belied by some, who thought they were only sounding forth his praise.

I can now, my friends, boldly assert to you, that his Excellency Thomas Hutchinson, Esq; acknowledges a relation of the British Parliament to you, which includes a right to strip you of every badge of freedom, and to brand you with every mark of slavery, and that therefore he is as much more to be dreaded by you than Francis Bernard, as he is superior to him in every other part of his character; particularly, as inflexible integrity is superior to head-strong passion; as sense and learning to low base cunning and stratagem; as perfect knowlege of the whole affairs of the province to the grosest misinformation in that point.

It is not necessary to lay before you now the proper train of argument to prove that your owning the British Parliament for your supreme legislature, would be voluntarily to sacrifice freedom, and accept the condition of slaves. I shall do that soon hereafter; and only remark at present, that your Elections for several years past may be counted a good proof that you see your danger. On the other hand, the arts that are in practice by some enemies among us to procure a great change of Representatives, is a discovery of their opinion, that a corrupt House would answer all their purposes. I have hinted, in my last, that such a House might commit that evil, which a thousand wise and virtuous Assemblies hereafter could not remedy.

Governor Hutchinson gives you room to look upon him in a suffering condition, by declining or delaying his assent to bills formed in our General Court for his support; and owns a probability of his being provided for another way. In short, his whole answer of the 25th of April to a Message of your Representatives, is in the style of one almost quite independent. He does indeed leave you an opening to think that his present expectations may fall through; and that, by his future instructions and appendages, you may possibly be allowed the honor of paying him a salary; and I might add, of repairing an old house for him.

My abused Brethren, it is quite immaterial to you whether he is paid by the King of France or Spain, or by King George the III. of Great Britain, if it is done with money not GIVEN by you for that very purpose. If a stranger to us had supposed such a thing might be, ignorance stands a ready excuse: but when that is done by one born and bred among us, of known and distinguished abilities, &c. &c. &c. it is a complication of—— but I desist, for I know not words in our language that can express my ideas, except such as would look like abuse of any man who is acknowledged to possess one single good quality.

I intreat you, my dear friends, by the sacred name of LIBERTY, to proceed in the coming Election with the Spirit of Men, whose Freedom critically depends upon the prudence and discretion of their choice that day. In my last, I supposed a necessity of your chusing Veterans in the cause of Liberty; that necessity is now so apparent, that an attempt to prove it would be an insult to your understanding. (a) vid pa. 473. AN ELECTOR IN 1771.

[The following ADDRESS was omitted last Week, for want of Room.]

To the FREEHOLDERS in the several Towns within the Province of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY, and OTHER INHABITANTS, qualified by LAW to chuse REPRESENTATIVES.

Gentlemen,

THE Season is now returned for your exercise of that GRAND LEGAL RIGHT, the giving being to a respectable body of men, the PEOPLE'S REPRESENTATIVES, or what means the same thing, the natural guardians of their lives and properties, and protectors of their rights and liberties. And as the present is, in various respects, a very critical season, suffer me to beseech you, by all that is dear to a FREEBORN people, to attend upon this business, and to act in it with deliberation and caution: not upon the low design of serving any private interest; but with a single view to the good of your country, the redress of its grievances, the security of its liberties, and the prevention of needless and oppressive burdens.

You are, I doubt not, clearly satisfied, that those only ought to be the objects of your choice, who are men of capacity and integrity; men of honor and conscience; men of generous principles, and a public spirit; men of inviolable firmness in their attachment to the constitution, liberties, and interests of the county; men who dare speak their minds with freedom and plainess, and are incapable of being wrought upon to give into measures that shall invade your rights, or deprive you, in any degree, of your invaluable liberties:—You are, I say, sufficiently convinced, that THESE ONLY are the men you ought to give existence to as REPRESENTATIVES. And, as this is an affair, wherein the welfare of your persons, of your families, of the towns you respectively belong to, and of the whole province, is deeply concerned, it can't easily be supposed, but that it will be your care to give your votes for SUCH ONLY as are of this character.

The great danger is, lest you should be mistaken in your men, and chuse those, who, while courting your favor, may put on the appearance of warm friends to the cause of English liberty and privilege; but, when they have gained their ends, will look down upon you with contempt, and pursue their own schemes of ambition and interest, whatever becomes of you, or of your most sacred rights.

Permit me, then, with all humble deference, to suggest the following advice for your guidance in the ensuing election. They will, I believe, approve themselves to your calm and sober judgment, and, it may be, the more you think of them, the better you will like them.

Let it be an immoveably fixed point with you, not to give a vote for those who are friends to arbitrary power, and may be in readiness to fall in with any measures, however destructive of your interest, so they can best feather their own nests. Can you bear to think of having your money taken out of your purses without your consent? Can you esteem it any other than oppressive treatment to have this money, thus forced from you, given away in useless pensions, enormous stipends for the support of Governors, Admiralty Judges, a Board of Commissioners, and a long train of underlings, placed in a condition of absolute independency on you? Can it be supposed, you would be willing to be governed by m--n--s--l mandates, carried into effect by those who are powerfully tempted, and by your money too unconstitutionally squeezed out of you, to act as t--y--ls in making you little better than so many slaves? If you are not as yet reconciled to such bare-faced invasions of your natural as well as charter-rights, you cannot harbor a thought of chusing those, who either express a favorable opinion of these encroachments, or feel no uneasiness under them, and are rather disposed to treat them as light and trivial matters, than to remonstrate against them with all the zeal that is consistent with constitutional good order: You would, indeed, act as if beside yourselves, should you give life to such despots in a REPRESENTATIVE-CAPACITY,

You will also be particularly careful to pass by those, who are wanting in that resolution and firmness of spirit, without which they will be apt to vary and change; especially when tempted to servile compliances with the humor and pleasure of those they may have expectations from. The times call for invariable steadiness in an attachment to constitutional principles; and none ought to be entrusted with your political affairs, that are wavering and inconstant. Such may with no greater security be depended on, than a wave of the sea driven with the wind and tossed.

If there are any, who, from their constitutional cast, would be pleasingly tickled with the stile of Esq; or any other title, civil or military, importing superiority above others, never entertain a thought of giving your suffrage for them; for the danger would be great, lest, instead of waiting for promotion upon the foot of merit, they should greedily run into any measures to gratify that VANITY which has got such fast hold of them: nor could you pitch upon any persons more likely to be employed as tools to answer designs that may be ruinous to you.

Are there any who are enemies to FREEDOM with the PEN, and to such a degree as to long for constituted inspectors of the press? I can, without the least hesitation, earnestly recommend it to you to avoid such, as you would slavery itself: For, as the British Cato well says, "There can be no such thing as public liberty without "freedom of speech. This sacred privilege is so essential to free "governments, that the security of property and freedom of speech, "always go together; and in those wretched countries, where a "man can't call his tongue his own, he can scarce call any thing "else his own. The administration of government is nothing else "but the attendance of the trustees of the people upon the interest "of the affairs of the people; and as it is the part and business "of the people, for whose sake alone all public matters are or "ought to be transacted, to see whether they be well or ill tran-"sacted; so it is the interest, and ought to be the ambition, of all "honest magistrates to have their deeds openly examined, and "publicly scaned. Guilt only dreads liberty of speech, nor has "any thing to fear from it." * 'Tis true, where there is liberty, there may be licentiousness. But this is as true of any other liberty as that of the tongue or pen. And if 'tis reasonable our tongues or pens should be subjected to the controul of appointed inspectors, lest they should be misused, 'tis as reasonable that our liberty in all other instances, should be restrained in like manner; that is to say, we ought to be enslaved to prevent making an ill use of our freedom. Those who think thus are the most unsuitable persons to be entrusted with the liberties of a people: and a people who have it in their power to chuse their own trustees, must be unadvised to an high degree to make such the objects of their choice.

If any have discovered a disposition to turn your complaints, however grounded on the real truth of stubborn facts, into arguments against you as disturbers of the peace, and movers of sedition in the state, take special care how you put it in their power, in the character of representatives, to reflect indignity on you. It is, in general, a great abuse of the people to speak of them as apt to be turbulent, uneasy, and factious: As one of the best political writers justly observes, "They are only so, when they are made so. "There is scarce an example in an hundred years of any people's "giving governors uneasiness, till their governors have made them "uneasy. Nay, for the most part, they bear many evils without "returning one, and seldom throw off their burdens so long as they "can stand under them." They have a right to complain of grievances when they feel them. Englishmen certainly have this right, and should make it appear that they have, and that they know it too, by eternally keeping at a distance from those, in their elections, who call their just complaints by the odious name of sedition and faction, and openly charge them for making them with principles and practices inconsistent with the safety of government.

In short, if there are any, who, in former assemblies, have sitted themselves, as instruments, to be employed in future ones, not to serve your interest, but that of others, to whose service they are intirely devoted, you cannot be at a loss to determine, that it will be inconsistent with your safety to make them members of the legislature. They are, indeed, above all persons, the most improper to be your political trustees: Nor can you be freely active in constituting them such, unless you are blind to your own welfare, or altogether unconcerned about it.

These, Gentlemen, are the persons I would advise you to pass by in your approaching election; and I give you this advise, not from a party spirit; not from prejudice or ill-will against any; much less with a view to stir up sedition among you: But my single aim herein is the public good. I am a native of this province, and sincerely and tenderly concerned for its prosperity; and nothing, as I apprehend, will have a stronger tendency to promote it, than your making a wise choice of men to REPRESENT you in the general court; for which reason only I have thus wrote to you.

I cannot conclude this address in better adapted words than those of Cato, in one of his letters to the Freeholders of Great-Britain, when about to chuse members of Parliament. Says he, "Consider, Gentlemen, oh! consider, what you are about, and whether you will bring life or death upon us. Oh! take care of "yourselves, and of us all. We are all in your hands, and so at "present are your REPRESENTATIVES; but very quickly the "scene will be shifted, and both you and we shall be their's. Do "not judge of them by their present humble speeches, and condescending carriage; but think what they are like to be, when "they are no longer under your eye, when they are no longer suing to you, nor want you. These humble creatures, who now "bow down before you, will soon look down upon you——Oh! "chuse such as are most likely to do it with most pity and tenderness, and are most likely to relieve you of those burdens under "which we all sadly groan, and under which we must certainly "sink, never to rise again, if we are not relieved." *

I am, Gentlemen, with great sincerity, and the most ardent wishes for your prosperity, your most affectionate humble servant,

Good freſh Mulberry Seeds to be given away. Inquire of Edes and Gill.

Messrs. EDES & GILL,

IN the year 1769 the House of Representatives of this province remonstrated to Governor Bernard then in the Chair, against the indignity of sitting in general assembly surrounded with armed troops and with cannon pointed at their very door. The governor, instead of vindicating the honor of that legislative body of which he himself was a part, meanly condescended to disclaim any authority over the troops within the province, over which his Majesty had appointed him Governor & Commander in Chief, and remov'd the assembly to Cambridge. This the House protested against as a new grievance, but concluded the business of the session; after which the assembly was prorogu'd to a very distant day to meet in Boston. The Governor soon embark'd for London, and left Mr. Hutchinson to fill the Chair, who further prorogu'd the assembly to meet at Harvard College; alledging in his speech to both houses, that he intended to have met them in Boston but that he was otherwise instructed. The House again remonstrated against the holding the assembly out of its ancient and established seat, arbitrarily, to their manifest inconvenience and the injury of the province. Since which another assembly has been called at Harvard College and there continued by three several prorogations, till a dissolution in its course took place; and now again writs are issued for the calling a new assembly to meet at the same place. The most charitable construction that I could ever put upon this conduct was, that Lord Hillsborough knowing that the troops were posted in Boston, and expecting they would remain there, thought it best that an assembly so tenacious of their honor, should be held in another place, and accordingly instructed his Honor; who perhaps from the character given of him by Bernard, he was well assured, would always be subservient to the humour of the minister. But might not his Honor who was "born and educated among us" have improved a lucky incident which occur'd, namely, the unexpected removal of the troops from Boston, and acquainted his lordship that the objection to the sitting of the assembly there was then at an end. It would have been natural for a gentleman dispos'd to oblige his native country, to have taken such an opportunity: and presuming that it could not have been displeasing to a wise and prudent minister, to have even of his own accord, prorogued the assembly to its most convenient place. This might have been the rather expected, as his Honor's friends have told us, that he was utterly averse to an appointment as chief governor. If therefore he could have imagined that such a measure would have given offence to the minister, the evil would have been more than balanced in the mind of his Honor, by its having served the province in a point which he well knew the two houses of assembly and by far the majority of the people judged to be essential. Besides which, as his Honor has at last been prevail'd upon to accept of a commission from his Majesty appointing him governor and commander in chief, it would have afforded some grounds of hope that lenient measures would have been pursued, on his part, and that the change of men would have been happy to the province.

NEW-LONDON, April 26.

We hear from Stratford, that the Rev. Doct. Johnson has taken a House in that Town for the Dean of Limrick, whom he expects daily, he being appointed by the King to inspect into the State of the Episcopal Churches on the Continent, and make return annually from this Colony. He is to continue in this Office Four Years. —Whether this Office is to be established, or whether it is only to prepare the Way for an American Bishop, we do not yet learn: But this is evident, that the present Method of Information, (by the Missionaries in their Letters to the Hon. Society) renders it highly necessary that there should be some other Way than what has been usually practiced, for a right Information of the Episcopal Churches in these Colonies, and the Conduct of their Missionaries, & the great need they stand in of a Visitor.

SUPPLEMENT to the Boston-Gazette, &c. of (No. 839.)

MONDAY, May 6, 1771.

You are requeſted to publiſh the following.

IT is reported that the Rev. Mr. Emerſon of Concord has, not long ſince, preached for the Rev. Dr. Eliot of Boſton.

It is preſumed that the Dr. a gentleman of ſuch eminence in the church, and univerſally eſteemed for his learning and ſincerity, never ſaw the reſult of thirteen very reſpectable churches, ſome time ſince convened at Concord; and therefore for his information, and the information of the Clergy in general, it is here publiſhed; leaving it to every one to judge and determine for himſelf.

A Council of eight churches met at Concord Auguſt 28, 1770, viz. The 2d church in Pembroke, the churches in Waltham, Weſton, Lexington, Newtown, Middleton, Shirley and Lunenburg, at the deſire of Mr. Benjamin Wheeler, and other brethren aggrieved; and met again upon adjournment October 23d, with the addition of five other churches, viz. the 2d in Lancaſter, the 3d in Hingham, the churches in Brookline and Chelſea, and the 1ſt in Dedham, which fail'd at the firſt ſeſſion; and again conven'd Nov. 13, by their elders and delegates, to hear ſuch matters of complaint as ſaid aggrieved ſhould lay before them, and to give their advice thereupon.—After repeated addreſſes to Heaven for direction and aſſiſtance, and having at our ſeveral ſeſſions uſed all prudent meaſures in our power, both in a private capacity, and as a council, to prevail with the Rev. Mr. Emerſon to convene his church, for a friendly interview, to concert ſome proper meaſures for an amicable adjuſtment of their difficulties, but were unhappily prevented by ſuch a deportment in Mr. Emerſon as we are loth to conſider as a ſpecimen of his general temper and conduct; and having offered our beſt advice to the church, in a letter that was communicated by their paſtor, but not comply'd with by them; from compaſſion to the aggrieved, and a regard to the common rights and privileges of Chriſtians, we found ourſelves obliged to enter upon the merits of the cauſe, giving notice at the ſame time, of our deſire, that all parties and perſons that were diſpoſed, might be preſent; and after a very particular hearing, at which the Rev. Mr. Emerſon and Mr. Jonathan Puffer appeared and defended themſelves, the Council unanimouſly came into the following Reſult.

I. That it appears to this Council, that Lieut. Jones communicated the verbal meſſage from the Rev. Dr. Eliot to the Rev. Mr. Emerſon, referr'd to in the firſt article: and that Mr. Emerſon after he had received ſaid meſſage, by Lieut. Jones, declared to the church it was the advice of the Rev. Mr. Bernard and Dr. Eliot, not to take a vote for the acceptance of the Reſult of the late venerable mutual council; and therefore Mr. Emerſon's conduct herein was deceptive, and diſcovered a criminal diſregard to TRUTH.

II. With reſpect to Mr. Emerſon's ſaying, as in the 2d article, "that the reſult of the late mutual council was not explicit, but needed explanation, and was inconſiſtent with itſelf;" we could have wiſhed that he had expreſſed himſelf with more decency and prudence; eſpecially as ſuch repreſentations had an evident tendency to prevent its ſalutary influence.

III. That Mr. Emerſon's early mentioning to Mr. Lee, that he expected from him a private acknowledgment, as a condition of his admiſſion into the church, complained of in the 3d article, was counteracting the pacific intention of the late mutual council.

IV. As to the 4th article, 'tis the opinion of this council, that the objections to Mr. Lee's admiſſion were unſeaſonably offered and received, and as they related not to any inſtance of miſconduct in ſaid Lee, ſince the late mutual council, we eſteem it cruel and unchriſtian behavior.

V. This Council are of the mind, that Mr. Emerſon has been too remiſs in recording the votes of the Church, in ſeveral inſtances, and in particular, that he has been very faulty in omitting the record of a vote relative to the choice of a committee to join the aggrieved brethren, in order to fix upon ſome terms on which to call in a mutual council; eſpecially as it is the opinion of the church expreſſed in their letter to us, that "an abſolute refuſal of joining with the aggrieved, in calling a mutual council, is the only thing that gives color of propriety to the embodying a party council."

VI. Mr. Emerſon's requeſting the aggrieved to forgive him; both as a brother and as a paſtor and all the brethren, as a term of their coming to communion the next Sabbath, and doing it in ſuch a manner,* we eſteem juſt ground of offence; and an inſtance of unparalleled imprudence and haughtineſs, containing in it a fetch and artifice, altogether unjuſtifiable; for which we can't but think his own conſcience, upon reflection, muſt reproach and condemn him.

VII. The Council think, that the Rev. Mr. Emerſon's taking & detaining a paper, belonging to the aggrieved, as complained of, was a piece of conduct, not ſo fair and equitable to the aggrieved, as might have been expected.

VIII. The Council judge that the complaint of the aggrieved reſpecting the paſtors partiality, is not ſupported.

IX. As to the firſt article of complaint againſt the Church, it appears to this Council, that their accepting the reſult of the late mutual council, and their acting in direct oppoſition to its obvious intention and deſign, was highly diſhonorable to their profeſſion, and tended to renew and increaſe the unhappy contention in this place; we would alſo add, that in our opinion, Mr. Lee, ever ſince the acceptance of the reſult of the aboveſaid council, has been, and is ſtill, a fair candidate for admiſſion, as member in full of a Chriſtian church.

X. From what has been offered in ſupport of the remaining articles of grievance, relating to the church, and a number of its particular members, more eſpecially from its own votes, it appears to this Council, that in divers inſtances, the church has acted a ſtrange and an unaccountable part. And too much prejudice and unworthy artifice has appeared in ſome particular members mentioned in the paper of complaint; eſpecially Mr. Jonathan Puffer has diſcovered much of an unchriſtian and litigious temper and conduct, for which we think he deſerves ſevere reproof.

Having noticed the ſeveral articles of complaint, we now adviſe the aggrieved brethren, in caſe the paſtor and church ſhall give them reaſonable and chriſtian ſatisfaction, readily to return to the communion with them. And in particular, we adviſe that they look upon it as ſuch ſatisfaction, if the paſtor and church ſhall declare their acceptance of this reſult; otherwiſe we aſſure the aggrieved, we ſhall be ready to open the doors of our churchs to them, and do heartily recommend them to the communion of other regular Churches, as there ſhall be occaſion.

And we earneſtly recommend it to the brethren, that have call'd for our aſſiſtance, to cultivate a ſpirit of love and harmony—to be kind and forgiving—to treat their paſtor and brethren with tenderneſs and reſpect, and in all things to behave as becomes the Chriſtian character—and ſo as to adorn their profeſſion, and advance the intereſt of religion, peace and holineſs in this place.—Brethren, be cloathed with humility; put on that charity that vaunteth not itſelf; be not high-minded, but fear; give no offence in any thing, but cauſe your light to ſhine before others, that they ſeeing your good works may glorify your Father which is in heaven.

The paſtor will give us leave to obſerve, that as it is a time of difficulty and temptation, we feel a tender concern for him, in his uncomfortable ſituation, & wiſh him all needed divine influence, and that wiſdom which is profitable to direct. We truſt, Sir, that you will take a becoming notice of the preſent frowning aſpects of providence, and intreat you ſeriouſly to reflect upon your temper and conduct. At the ſame time, we can't help expreſſing our ſorrow, that you, yourſelf, ſhould be in any meaſure acceſſary to thoſe troubles; eſpecially by not properly complying with the wholeſome advice of the late mutual council. We hope you will not be wanting on your part, to endeavor a removal of the preſent difficulties, and do yourſelf honor, in giving eaſe to the minds of your diſtreſſed brethren, by a conduct in future, becoming your ſacred character.

We conclude with our ardent prayers, that you may enjoy much of the divine preſence and bleſſing; and that grace, mercy and peace may be multiplied to this beloved flock and church of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt: and that his kingdom may be univerſally advanced. AMEN.
